Why We Wish We Bought It:

This beautiful, 7,200-square-foot contemporary mansion is located on the waterfront in Lavallette, New Jersey. Built in 1990, the Art Deco-inspired home with a breathtaking view of the Barnegat Bay is bright, airy and spacious. With eight bedrooms and eight baths, the Jersey Shore mansion features an open floor plan with high-ceilinged rooms—perfect for late-night parties that spill out to the jacuzzi and spacious pool terrace, which leads to the water's edge and private boat dock. By blending the interior and exterior, the property has a luxurious, retreat-like quality.

The magnificent, cream-colored house proudly sits on the bay and is just a short bike ride to the beach. The gated property is completely fenced in with a large motor court that can accommodate multiple guests as well as a two-car garage. Upon entering the elegant abode, a dramatic free-standing curved staircase greets the guests. Floor-to-ceiling windows and white interiors give the house an airy, sun-lit elegance and frame nautical scenes of the bay. On the lower level, the main living room features two seating areas and a variety of musical instruments, including two grand pianos. The eat-in kitchen with island is perfect for entertaining, and the dining room is surrounded by glass doors that open to the pool terrace and bay.

The lower level of the house also features a cozy media room with walls decorated with posters from the movie star's classic films, such as "Goodfellas," "Casino," and "My Cousin Vinny." On the upper level, which can also be reached by elevator, there are several bedrooms and an office, each with private terraces and spectacular views of the water. Finally, a downstairs party room next to the pool and spa has its own kitchen for entertaining and completes this epic Jersey Shore home.
