The man behind Chicago's Mariano's grocery stores—Bob Mariano—has listed his home on Clover Drive.

Mariano purchased the 9,600-square-foot home with his wife, Nina, four years before launching his chain of gourmet grocery stores. The house features a two-story living room that looks out over a terrace in addition to a pub area and combined kitchen, family room and breakfast room that opens up to the outdoors.

The home, which has four full bedrooms and bathrooms, is currently priced at $2.2 million.
